Through her quest, Cady finds out that the people she thought she knew best are not what she believed them to be. She meets the man of her dreams literally, watches one of her best friends die, all the while trying to stay alive as she brings all types of Supernatural's to fight the powerful demon who wants her dead. Demon Dreams

Charm Livingston's life is hell, literally. As a vengeance demon, she resides in the underworld until a furious soul calls upon her to exact revenge in exchange for ten years in hell. Being a demon is bad enough, but as the daughter of the devil himself she has very little wiggle room for escape. And escaping is all she's ever dreamed of, leaving the bowels of hell and becoming human is the one dream she knows she cannot have or can she? When a man is murdered by one of her fellow demons, the now grieving fianc calls upon Charm for help. Charm's psychometric power helps her replay the events leading up to the man's death. In the midst of arranging justice for her client she meets the angel that was the killer's target. He's injured and she saves his life, despite the repercussions her actions could have on her own soul. Daddy dearest wants the angel dead, and she derails the devil's plans. In return, the angel agrees to help Charm with her greatest wish, except that ascension isn't going to be easy. She'll need to pass through the thirteen levels of the underworld by passing thirteen tests in order to overcome the realm of purgatory and reach the Hall of Akashic Records where her soul can be reborn. In Father Made Me Do It, she faces her first test and begins her journey from the underworld to mortal life while she continues to carry out her duty as the justice demon. The fine line she treads is fraught with danger, and her naivety in human ways will take readers on an emotional roller coaster of tears and laughter. * Book contains content of adult nature and is intended for audiences 18 and older

The Bear Who Forgot Christmas

Before he can retire, Las Vegas detective Salazar is determined to solve a recent spate of murders. When he encounters a pair of conjoined twins with a container of blood near their car, he's sure he has apprehended the killers, and enlists the help of Dr. Sunil Singh, a South African transplant who specializes in the study of psychopaths. As Sunil tries to crack the twins, the implications of his research grow darker. Haunted by his betrayal of loved ones back home during apartheid, he seeks solace in the love of Asia, a prostitute with hopes of escaping that life. But Sunil's own troubled past is fast on his heels in the form of a would-be assassin. Suspenseful through the last page, The Secret History of Las Vegas is Chris Abani's most accomplished work to date, with his trademark visionary prose and a striking compassion for the inner lives of outsiders.

The Book of the Thousand Nights and a Night

Forest Nymphs

In his study of the origins of political reflection in twentieth-century African fiction, Donald Wehrs examines a neglected but important body of African texts written in colonial (English and French) and indigenous (Hausa and Yoruba) languages. He explores pioneering narrative representations of pre-colonial African history and society in seven texts: Casely Hayford's Ethiopia Unbound (1911), Alhaji Sir Abubaker Tafawa Balewa's Shaihu Umar (1934), Paul Hazoumé's Doguicimi (1938), D.O. Fagunwa's Forest of a Thousand Daemons (1938), Amos Tutuola's The Palm-Wine Drinkard (1952) and My Life in the Bush of Ghosts (1954), and Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart (1958). Wehrs highlights the role of pre-colonial political economies and articulations of state power on colonial-era considerations of ethical and political issues, and is attentive to the gendered implications of texts and authorial choices. By positioning Things Fall Apart as the culmination of a tradition, rather than as its inaugural work, he also reconfigures how we think of African fiction. His book supplements recent work on the importance of indigenous contexts and discourses in situating colonial-era narratives and will inspire fresh methodological strategies for studying the continent from a multiplicity of perspectives.

The Journey to the West

people in a vivid portrayal of post-Katrina New Orleans, bringing them together for a murderous denouement." Paul Levitz, former President and Publisher of DC Comics Leslee Vitolsik thinks she's just struggling against life: dealing with manipulative divorced parents, making grades that'll get her into med school, scrounging tips at the Torre Reppeto to pay her bills, wondering if she'll ever have a social life. Tamryn Aronstein just wants to enjoy her life: get decent grades, keep her parents happy, have fun in her sorority. Kyle Birzi just wants to make money, lots of it: as a stockbroker by day; at an off-the-books auto shop after hours, where he's known as "Skizzer"; and as a dealer whenever he can. But when Skizzer does a hit-and-run on one of Tamryn's sorority sisters, their lives begin to intertwine: Leslee becomes the perfect cover for Skizzer's deals, Leslee and Tamryn, a daily visitor to the Torre Reppeto, begin an awkward friendship; and once Skizzer suspects Tamryn knows his secret, he decides on a repeat performance to end the threat. Yet for Leslee, a 300 year old act of kindness may make all the difference in the world."

Pre-Colonial Africa in Colonial African Narratives

I have not yet seen each page but every page I have seen I am in love with. I view the images and vaguely remember seeing them before but I do not remember writing most of the text which i feel is a good thing, usually is a good thing, meaning i haven't tried too hard but have listened well. listened closely. However, it does sound like something I would write so that's cool. I absolutely love how the text is married to the images. Just perfection beyond what i thought possible. I'm stunted at coming up with a blurb but sitting here pondering it anyway with the few spare moments I have. Found Forest Floor by Gareth A Hopkins & Erik Blagsvedt, available NOW. Trees and Forest

The Great Procession chronicles a series of encounters with the Holy Spirit that Jacob Reeve experienced over the course of nine months immediately following a 40-day fast. During this time, Jacob was awakened almost every night by the Spirit to receive the next portion of an ongoing parable that picked up where it left off the night before. As the story unfolds, so does the contrast between the divisive religious mindset and the mindset of pure identity in Christ. The Spirit is revealing what it looks like for mankind to venture out from the island of isolation and into the open forests of God's Kingdom: hence the Great Procession. For many, this parable will represent a foundational shift in the way everything is seen. The Incredible insights from the Holy Spirit answer many of those deep-down questions about life, purpose, and faith that many of us have, and will prove to be an indispensable resource for anyone who desires to live in a wholehearted, full embrace with Christ, knowing the King and His Kingdom, and living in the true faith, freedom, and love that the Holy Spirit beckons us into.

Father Made Me Do It

Demons in Eden

Jack County was a moral place, one filled with hard working, Bible believing Texans, where worship of a loving God was as much a part of life as anything else. The people of Jack County were decent and loving. It was a place where you cared about your neighbor, where your soul meant more than your paycheck, and where the little things in life mattered most. There was no need to impress others, for everyone understood they were on equal ground in God's eyes. In Jack County, churches were as common as gas stations, crosses filled yards, and conversation was more often about religion than celebrities. People were blue collar, liked country music, and allowed their faith to lead them through life. Then, the demons moved in. Their power was unheard of, so strong; it drove out the decent people. They burned down churches, they scattered the crosses, and they soiled the once fertile land. The demons were a plague, there was no stopping them, and for quite some time, they ruled with an iron fist. That is, until the Navy Seals came to give the demons a fight of epic proportions. Jack County - the battlefield of good versus evil.

Loom.

Henry's Demons

Jonathan Silvertown here explores the astonishing diversity of plant life in regions as spectacular as the verdant climes of Japan, the lush grounds of the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew, the shallow wetlands and teeming freshwaters of Florida, the tropical rainforests of southeast Mexico, and the Canary Islands archipelago, whose evolutionary novelties - and exotic plant life - have earned it the sobriquet "the Gal pagos of botany." Along the way, Silvertown looks closely at the evolution of plant diversity in these locales and explains why such variety persists in light of ecological patterns and evolutionary processes. In novel and useful ways, he also investigates the current state of plant diversity on the planet to show the ever - challenging threats posed by invasive species and humans. This paperback edition will include an entirely new chapter on the astonishing diversity of plant life in the Western Cape of South Africa that focuses on fynbos, a vegetation endemic to the Cape. Bringing the secret life of plants into more colorful and vivid focus than ever before, Demons in Eden is an empathic and impassioned exploration of modern plant ecology that unlocks evolutionary mysteries of the natural world.
